

AFTER INTERMEDIATE WHAT? (Careers)

PRIVATE SECTOR: Smaller Establishment Jobs

By the time a youth passes his Examination, he is only 17 years of age. He is neither eligible for employment nor for self-employment loan sanction. But usually brilliant students cross the hurdle of Intermediate Examination, successfully and leap forward towards higher studies.

It is those candidates who are not successful in Intermediate Examination and who cannot afford to go for further studies, and who eventually gain time on their scale of age., and facing pressure from the elders of the family to do some job, who initiate steps to find suitable job. The first priority is the job should be within the reach of the candidate.

Secondly, it should be within as much distance as the candidate could easily afford to traverse by any mode within his means like, bicycle, or bus or train or motor-bike, if he has any.

Thirdly, he must be able to afford easily and meet the need of mid-day meal to fulfill his requirement of energies till supper, either at the employer's canteen or local commercial canteen or from the tiffin carrier provided at home.

Thus with his travel needs and midday meal needs fulfilled properly and rest of the wages proving paying to him, he will be able to pay full attention to the job and work punctually and regularly.

Those candidates who find it difficult to get job in the vicinity of their locality, they must be ready to migrate to other areas, either with whole dependent family or individually by resorting to cooking by themselves, in which area they must first become self-sufficient. On the whole, one thing gets solidified here: it is the ability to work by themselves and the capacity to live by themselves. While doing so, it may soon turn up that the job in which you have landed with such little qualifications and so little exposure to the world of work, is not upto your liking and you would like to change. In order to avoid this eventuality, you must select the job based on your interest area only. Interest areas are of ten types:

From the description of Occupation titles given above, it will be clear to you in which smaller Establishments around you or your town, the job will be there. Secondly, Some occupations may be available both in the smaller establishments or in the bigger Private (Act) establishments. If the employer from a Private (Act) bigger establishment finds you suitable and employs you, you will be lucky,. Because, in the case of the Private (Act) establishments, facilities provided to the employees may be more . Please go through the segment on Smaller Establishments and private A (Act) Establishments given under the Heading, After SSC, What?

Next thing to be understood by you is that all the employers in the Smaller Establishment category, may not offer some jobs as 'direct entry jobs'. This is because they are wary of Fresher intermediate candidates. They fear loss of costly raw material at the hands of an untrained or unexposed worker, or they are not inclined to spend time and energy on training them. So, the candidate should first get himself acquainted with various industrial [i.e. Industry -related] operations in other establishments and then come to these employers for job.

Remember, all these smaller establishments are situated around you or in Commercial and industrial clusters around your town or village. Visiting these places in person and making friendship with some workers already employed there will prove useful to you.
